ROYALTY AND BIG SLEEVES

George of England Has Issued a A 10°/o Mandate to His Wife.

odd Little Story That Has Crept Out in Their Highnesses.

The big sleeve has made an enemy of leorge of England, and the way of it was this:

It became necessary, on a recent occasion, for his Royal Highness to confer privately with his Duchess in the presence of friends. Hecouldn'tdownright whisper—evenroyalty cannot afford to be ungracious in these days of culture, so he simply modulated his tones and waited for a reply.

May, Duchess of York, might have been a telephone with a crazy wire for all the satisfaction he got, so he said it all over, and still sheeould not hear. An explanation revealed the fact that she never would hear until he spoke louder or went nearer. He didn't want to speak louder, and he couldn't come nearer because of the globular expanse of her sleeves.

The result was a measurement of the lady of her sleeves.

The result was a measurement of the lady from sleeve to sleeve, and when it was discovered that the some day queen of England was broader than she was long, arrangements were made for the immediate readjustment of her beauty lines. The fuctions is as semble now as the day on which she left off being Princess of Tect and married to please the queen. She sacrificed every objectionable inch at the shrine of her royal husband's will, and that is the real why that, for her, the balloon-buttleffly-melon-mandodin-"effects" are as though they had never been.

Once on a time the kingdom of society was inhabited by ordinary people who were satisfied to stroll through Vanity Fair with never a thought for other concerns than those of their own—and their neighbors. Suddenly Queen Fashion, the Rhadamanthan despot of that realm, set every idle inhelict to work by organizing clubs, social, literary and philanthropical, and commanding her votaries to Join. So they Joined.

and commanding her votaries to join. So they joined.

Then the years flew by and the ordinary inhabitants grew so wise and clever that they became the parents of the wise and clever people of today.

It is nature for this generation to belong to guids, Chantanquas, corps, chanters and legions, and we work so hard to keep ourseives members in good standing that we fag our brains and strain our nerve tissues. So again Fashion makes a decree. She bids us divert our overworked mental forces with a whim of some sort and to call that whim our fad.

Palm culture is perhaps the most general of Washington Inds, and its popularity continues to grow with such tropical luxuriance that nearly every home here is its own botanical garden—varying in foliage and area, from the papyrus and rubber plants set in the bay windows of the ordinarily well-to-do citizen to the jungle-like conservatories of the abnormally rich.

The cooking jectures attached to recent jungle-like conservatories of the abnormally rich.

The cooking lectures attached to recent food shows created a fad for the making of creams, jellies, and sylabubs, and so absorbed did fashionable New York become in the fascinating process that Consucla, now Duchess of Marihorough, learned bow to boil water beautifully, while an equally ambitious heiress of Gotham achieved the making of bread—though history does not add that she was able to eat it.

It a fad is harmless don't mind about its being stilly. When it has rested your brain and nerve tissues sufficiently to threw it aside you can afford to haugh at your whim.

and nerve tissues sufficiently to throw it aside you can afford to laugh at your whim. The marriage of Miss Leila Roome, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Oscar Roome, to Mr. William W. Harris of Washington, took place at 81. Andrews & Church last evening, at 8 o'clock, the Rev. Joseph B. Perry officiality. The church was elaborately decorated with palms and while chrysanthemums, the pews, reserved for the relatives and intimate friends of the bride, being marked with blunches of large plack chrysanthemums of the Japanese variety.

The groom and his best man, Mr. E. E. Alexanier, preceded by the rector, entered the church from the vestry, and awaited the bridal party, at the chancel rail. The wedding party entered the center asse, preceded by the four ushers. Mr. W. H. Syme, Mr. James Towers, Mr. F. Klunnel, and Mr. William Oscar Roome, Jr., who wore boutomieres of chrysanthenums and finde rosebuds. Then came the bridesmaids, Miss Bessie Sydnor and Miss Woden, in white organide, with white satin ribbons. They carried huge yellow chrysanthenums, ted with white actin ribbons, and caried yellow chrysanthenums.

The maid of honor, Miss Marie N. Baldwin, wore winte organide over lemon silk, and carried white chrysanthenums. The maid of honor Miss Marie N. The bride followed, Faning upon the arm of her father, Mr. William Oscar Roome, She was gowned in heavy white satin, with court train. The corsage was handsomely ornamented withpenripassementerie and the satin bows in the latest node. Her tulle vell was artistically caught to her dark hair with lillies of the valley. The bride was given away by her father, and as the benediction was prenounced, the "Lohengrin" wedding march was played by Mr. Cheney as the welding party passed out.

Washington society enjoys no more brilled.

Washington society enjoys no more brilliant functions than those held at the Chinese legation, and the announcement that the series of entertainments, at which Mine. Zang Zu is the gracious hostess each season, will soon begin, is halled with pleasure. There is much rejoicing in the stately brownstone manison above which the dragon of China waves just now, owing to the fact that the absent minister will soon return.

the fact that the absent minister will soon return.

A cablegram received today states that Mr. Yang Yu and suite, who are now in London, will sail from Southampton for New York, December 7. The minister is on his way from Madrid, having visited Spain this fall to present his credentials, he being accredited also to that country. The members of the Chinese legation are quite the most picturesque foreigners of the diptomatic set, with their gay robes and fantastic head dresses. Mine. Yang Yu, in her gorgeous scarlet and gold thread gowns, with odd floral adornments fixed to the queer, tight-fitting head dress, that is ever a part of her costume, leading by the hand her bright little son, is one of the most attractive figures seen in smart drawing-rooms during the winter. She has shown marked cleverness, by the rapidity with which she has acquired a knowledge of the fine points of American cliquette, and is quite a progressive woman in thought and act.

The return of Mr. Yang Yu will be the Convention Hall Crowded With Visitors to the Teachers' Bazaar.

Over Six Thousand People Epjoyed the Concert and Inspected the Beauti-ful Articles for Sale.

The teachers' bazaar at Convention Hall is a tremendous success. Last night hundreds were turned away, owing to the great building being overerowded, and the police were taxed in strength and endurance in keeping back the masses of interested humanity, anxious to obtain entrance to the britishally similarity beautiful display and sale.

It was third Division night, pink was the color, cathusiasm the order of the hodr, and the pink crape butterily emblem and oadge, or the division were everywhere in evidence.

On the reception platform, which is covered with handsonic write for riggiand set with humanous chairs, a number of attractive indies, all extractors, greeted the guests.

They were Mrs. Alexander Steart, wife of the supervising principal of the Third Division; Mrs. Hoeve, chairman of the Alamni, Mrs. Le Lyon, Miss Flora Freyness, Mrs. John Sanders, Mrs. Com Leech, Mrs. 8, P. Hollinsworth, and Mrs. Franklin Janns, Mrs. Gen. Sander and Mrs. Miranda Talloch.

At the end of the hall, the center of attraction, was a missical entertainment. Those who participated were Mr. W. L. Wilson, Miss Ennor Simonds, Miss Mary Heien Howe, Prof. T. Whanns Pearman, Mr. Wm. R. Benham, pupils of Mr. A. Holmes, on the banlo, assisted by the "Madrids."

Inc Netherlands line, yesterday, donated through Miss Radeuburg of the First division, a round trip passage to Europe, and a number of railroad takets, including trips North, East, South and nearly so far West as the Mississippi, will be voted for during the week. Mertz & Mertz have roused much spirited competition by donating a letter-varriers' sait, which is being hotly contested for by Mr. Henry brauley of South Washington, and one or two others.

Donch's orchestra discoursed fine music throughout the evening. The National Fencilies and Sixth Battallion, National Guard, attended in uniform.

One of the most amissing side shows at the bazaar is the Beiphic Oracle, which has resurced to modern times in most acteding guise. Three statuesque and loveing guise. Three statuesque and loveing guise. Three statuesque and loveing guise as prestesses, mediating between the oracle and the madding crowd, at the door of a Boric temple.

An important decision reached by the ladies in charge is that the bazaar will be admitted during those hours.

In accordance with plans made by which many ex-teachers have volunicered to take charge, the bazaar will be open today from 1 to 4 o'clock.

ing them that the time was up and the loan was called, but would be renewed upon the payment of the interest. Some responded and some did not. Then it became necessary to sell the unredeemed pledges. "The trustees have decided that in every case where the piedge sells for a greater amount than the loan and the interest, the surplus, whatever it is, will be returned to the person who owned the article. When pledges do not bring the amount of the loan the society will stand the less. As I have stated, we can tell nothing about how we stand until after the sale is over. As to what the profits of the business have been I cannot say. If all the leans we have made were of sums under $8, there would be no profits at all, for the cost of bookkeeping and the cost of caring for the things, and the rent would eat up the interest. We have have larger loans that pay."

Mink Doubly Trapped. Bath, N. Y., Nov. 30 .- They trap a good

Bath, N. Y., Nov. 30.—They trap a good many mink yet over in Potter county, Pa., along the headwaters of the Genesce and Allegheny rivers and Pine Creek branch of the Susquehanna, all of which rise almost within a stone's throw of each other in that county. One day last week Silas Burdick, a trapper, found that a mink, or something else, had got into one of his traps and walked away with it.

He had other traps in the vicinity and he visited them all, getting six mink. In the last trap he came to, which was three miles down the stream from where he missed the first trap, he found the lost trap with a mink in it. The mink had carried the trap all that distance, and happened to drag its trencher over the pan of the other trap, which sprung and caught it, thus trapping a mink within a trap.—New York Sun.

Lodging in a Rope House.

Lodging in a Rope House.

The latest addition to the curiosities of St. Louis is what Secretary Saunders of the Election Commission calls a rope house. It is a combination saloon and hotel at Levee and Spruce streets, kept by a man named Peterson.

Across the room the proprietor has a rope stretched tightly, and in front of it and parallel with it is a row of ordinary wooden bottom chairs. Every lodger, upon payment of 5 cents, is given a chair and is allowed to sleep with his head resting upon the rope. They are allowed to sleep until 6 o'clock in the morning. Promptly at that time the bartender is required to see that every lodger is awakened and made ee that every lodger is a wakened and made to move on.

This is accomplished by striking one end of the rope with a bung starter. The blows have pretty much the same effect as striking the sleeping boarders on the bead with a billy, and they generally move on. If this fails, one end of the rope is un-fastened and the remaining sleepers are allowed to fall sprawling on the floor.—

Charles H. Gibson, who, as a result of the upheaval in Maryland, is serving his last term as Senator, has been generally regarded as the handsomest as well as the best-dressed man in the Senate. His Republican successor, whoever he may be, can never excel Gibson in good looks or furnish a finer exhibit to the admiring eyes in the Senate gallery of the artistic ability of a tailor.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
